

University of Illinois Extension 4-H Youth Summer Gardens in Carroll, Lee and Whiteside Counties

Youth participants and University of Illinois Master Gardeners tending the garden during their weekly class before the rain.

University of Illinois Master Gardener Sherri talks to participants about new developments to the vegetable plants and records them in the garden log.

Youth participants at the 4-H Food Access grant garden show off their first wheelbarrow of freshly harvested produce as they take it to be weighed before donation.

Two of our Plant U participants cutting up banana peppers and onions for our lesson on making salsa with fresh garden produce.

Excitedly showing the three baby green peppers that she harvested for making salsa on the last night of Plant U.